The Resurrection

But on the first day of the week at early dawn, they came to the tomb, taking the spices that they had prepared, and they found the stone rolled back from the tomb. But on entering, they did not find the body of the Lord Jesus. And it came to pass, while they were wondering what to make of this, that, behold two men stood by them in dazzling raiment. And when the women were struck with fear and bowed their faces to the ground, they said to them, "Why do you seek the living one among the dead? He is not here, but has risen. Remember how he spoke to you while he was yet in Galilee, saying that the Son of Man must be betrayed into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and on the third day rise."

And they remembered his words. And having returned from the tomb, they reported all these things to the Eleven, and to all the rest. Now, it was Mary Magdalene, and Joanna and Mary, the mother of James and the other women who were with them, who were telling these things to the apostles. But this tale seemed to them to be nonsense, and they did not believe the women. But Peter arose and ran to the tomb; and stooping down, he saw the linen cloths laid there; and he went away wondering to himself at what had come to pass.

And behold, two of them were going that very day to a village named Emmaus, which is sixty stadia from Jerusalem. And they were talking to each other about all these things that had happened. And it came to pass, while they were conversing and arguing together, that Jesus himself also drew near and went along with them; but their eyes were held, and they should not recognize him. And he said to them, "What words are these that you are exchanging as you walk and are sad?"

But one of them, named Cleophas, answered and said to him, "Art thou the only stranger in Jerusalem who does not know the things that have happened there in these days?" And he said to them, "What things?" And they said to him, "Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, who was a prophet, mighty in work and word before God and all the people; and how our chief priests and rulers delivered him up to be sentenced to death, and crucified him. But we were hoping that it was he who should redeem Israel. Yes, and besides all this, today is the third day since these things came to pass. And moreover, certain women of our company, who were at the tomb before it was light, astounded us, and not finding his body, they came, saying that they had also seen a vision of angels, who said that he is alive. So some of our company went to the tomb, and found it even as the women said, but him they did not see."

But he said to them, "O foolish ones and slow of heart to believe in all that the prophets have spoken! Did not the Christ have to suffer these things before entering into his glory?" And beginning then with Moses and all the Prophets, he interpreted to them in all the Scriptures the things referring to himself.

The Empty Tomb

Christians throughout the world are attending services commemorating the happenings on that first Easter Sunday morning over 1900 years ago. Here Dr. and Mrs. J. Ralph Black and their children, Jamie, 7; Valerie, 8; and Patti, 5, study a painting of the empty tomb and the descent of the Holy Spirit at the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection. The linens at the empty tomb attest to the resurrection and the descent of the Holy Spirit, in the form of a dove, confirm the scriptures . . . " . . . the Counselor, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, he will teach you all things, and bring to your remembrance all that I have said to you." (John 14:26)

In the Easter Parade

Springtide Kaleidoscope of Color

The children of Torrance are joining in the Easter Parade this morning wearing the latest in wonderful new spring fashions.

Particularly enchanting are the new classic designs worn by the fashionable little girls. With remarkable ingeniousness, the designer has incorporated the wide-eyed innocence of flower-sprigged cotton, tiny puffed sleeves, sheer dotted swiss and dainty lace trim. The colors are springtime itself—the white and yellow of the daisy . . . the pink of the rosebud . . . the blue of the cornflower. This plus the white crochet tights, white patent strap shoes and the straw bonnet, make this Easter morning a happy time for little girls.

The little boys are given the same brand of painstaking attention. They are sporting the traditional blazer in a new cool look in crisp poplin. The correct look chosen by the young gentleman, is the blazer combined with the tattersall checks. The mix-matchable checks and solid colors are of new materials with no ironing necessary.
